

The Cunningham Garden was established by Sallie Cunningham Pusey as a memorial to her family. A popular site for weddings, the garden is surrounded by giant oak, magnolia, ginkgo, and dogwood trees, creating an oasis in the middle of Elizabethtown. Sitting beneath the wisteria covered pergola one can take in the beauty of the terraced flower beds bursting with color from the fusion of floral plants and decorative shrubbery.

A House for the Community of Elizabethtown

The Brown-Pusey House, or the Hill House, as it was first called, has been a landmark in the community since 1825, serving as a home, a hotel, boarding house, library and community gathering place. The warmth and beauty of this regal house remind us of the many events and celebrations that have taken place year after year just as the Puseys envisioned when it was dedicated in 1922.

The builder of the house, John Y. Hill came to Kentucky about 1818 and opened a tailoring shop. Being a man of high energy, Hill soon became bored with tailoring and started building houses. By the time of his death in 1859, Hill had built a church, a college and many other structures in downtown Elizabethtown.

After the death of his first wife, Eliza, Mr. Hill married Rebecca Davis Stone in 1827.

About 1840 the couple made some additions to their home and converted it into a boarding house. The Hill House flourished as word of Aunt Beck's special coffee and hospitality spread across the Region. With the help of two servants, Aunt Beck continued to run the house until her death in 1882. Her stepson, James Hill, inherited the house and owned it until 1895. He leased it to the Middletons and they continued to operate it as the Hill House until 1890. It was then sold to A.D. McCann in 1895, to A.J. Bush in 1913, to J.M. Smith in 1919 and finally to the Pusey brothers in 1922. This was the first step toward realizing their dream of a community house for Elizabethtown.

The Pusey Legacy

Although most of their adult lives were spent in Chicago, Dr. William A. Pusey and Dr. Alfred Brown Pusey never forgot their Elizabethtown roots and wanted to give back to the community they so loved. They purchased and restored the Hill House which had belonged to their aunt, Rebecca Hill and renamed it The Brown-Pusey House. It is a fitting memorial to the Pusey family and their commitment to education and civic responsibility.

General George Armstrong Custer

Mrs. Custer sent this signed and dated photo of the General to Mrs. Hill after they left Elizabethtown. General Custer was killed at the Battle of the Little Big Horn in 1876.

General Custer was assigned to the Elizabethtown, KY post from 1871 - 1873. In a letter to his wife "Libby", he wrote the following with regard to the Hill House. "I enjoy this old-fashioned hotel, its quaint landlady is one and all. The meals are not so dreadful; applesauce and hot biscuits at each meal, and I have an appetite for both." During his stay in Elizabethtown, General Custer inspected and purchased horses for the army and raised hunting hounds. It is rumored that he had as many as 80 dogs at one time.

The Lincoln Cabinet - This corner cabinet crafted by Thomas Lincoln, President Abraham Lincoln's father, dates back to the Early 1800s. The patterns in the inlaid wood are unique to Thomas Lincoln. It was made for the George Wesley Hoskinson family, relatives of the Lincolns. Mr. Hoskinson gave the cabinet to the Brown-Pusey House in 1998 where it could be permanently displayed for the enjoyment of the citizens of Hardin County and visitors from around the world.
